Companies where everyday a number of meetings and conferences take place for important decisions, often need away for their employees and managers to view paper documents and images at once, and a digital presenter is the only tool up to the job. The digital Presenter can display written notes, diagrams and hard copies of documents with assistance of a projector and a screen mounted on the conference room's long wall. And with its high resolution, this unit is capable of displaying extremely minute detail. In addition, it takes up a small amount of space and unlike electronic whiteboards, it can display paper copies and users can face your audience while writing.
